Background 🖑

Society for Ethnopharmacology, India is a registered under the West Bengal Society Registration act 1961 and affiliated to the International Society for Ethnopharmacology. The society was formed in 2013 and has made its presence with different activities throughout the country, for development and promotion of medicinal plants and ethnopharmacology. The Society works on dissemination of knowledge in this area throughout India with the major highlights on "Globalizing local knowledge and localizing global technologies."

Ethnopharmacology has provided an early framework for the therapeutic use of natural compounds. Natural products, either in their native form or after crude extraction of their active ingredients, have long been used by different populations and explored as invaluable sources for drug design. Plants are an integral part of traditional system of medicine and also of life in many indigenous communities. To develop evidence-based research and more scientific data on their quality, safety and efficacy to improve consumers' medical care, scientific validation of such traditional medicines based on an ethnopharmacological prospective is essential. The seminar aims to focus on the current trends on ethnopharmacology research for future drug discovery and development efforts. The seminar will provide an ideal platform and unique opportunity for knowledge sharing among researchers, healthcare practitioners, industrialists, potential entrepreneurs and policy makers.

CSIR-North-East Institute of Science & Technology (CSIR-NEIST), Jorhat is a multidisciplinary laboratories of Council of Scientific & Industrial Research in NE India. Being multi-disciplinary organization, the institute has developed sustainable technologies covering broad areas from environment to energy and agriculture to healthcare. Over the years, the institute has generated more than 130 technologies. The institute has a glorious existence of more than 6 decades contributing immensely to the economic, industrial and societal upliftment of the North Eastern Region in particular and the country as a whole.
